שביל נחל המעיינות
שביל נחל המעיינות עובר לאורך כ-1.5 קילומטרים בין בוסתני עצי פרי. השביל מלווה בחלק מהדרך שתי אמות מים, שנבנו בתקופה הרומית המאוחרת (מאות 3 - 4 לספירה) שתי האמות מקבילות זו לזו. האמה העליונה, הגבוהה במטר מרעותה, מתחילה למרגלות חורבת עקד בנקבה החודרת לתוך שכבת קרקע נושאת מים. אמה זו כוויה ברובה חוליות אבן באורך 0.5 - 2 מטר, המחוברות זו לזו. האמה התחתונה מתחילה במתקן תת-קרקעי משוכלל, האוסף את מי התהום לבריכה קטנה. מהבריכה המים זורמים באמה, הבנויה חוליות באבן באורך כחצי מטר. ייתכן שבנקודה מסוימת התאחדו שתי האמות לאמה אחת.
בצד השביל נטעה קק"ל גפנים ועצי פרי כגון עצי שקד ותאנה. השביל מסתיים בבריכת המים הגדולה שליד מעיין התמרים. מערכת סחרור שואבת מים מהבריכה ומזרימה אותם באמה הקדומה לאורך כ-300 מטר.
הכניסה למי הבריכה אסורה!

החדר החם בבית המרחץ
الغرفه الساخنه فى الحمام
THE HOT ROOM IN THE BATHHOUSE
החדר החם (קלדריום), קיבל את חומו מחדר ההסקה אשר נבנה
בצמוד אליו. רצפת החדר החם נשענה על עמודונים (היפוקאוסטים)
וביניהם זרם אוויר חם שעלה דרך צינורות חרס בקירות, ומיחם
את רצפת החדר ואת קירותיו.
حصلت الغرفه الساخنه (كالدارىوم) على حرارتها من غرفه التدفئه
التي تقع بجوارها. تقع أرضية الغرفه الساخنه على أعمده صغيره
سمحت بتدفق الهواء الساخن وارتفاع الى الجدران عبر أنابيب طينيه، وهكذا
تم تسخين أرضية الغرفه وجدرانها.
THE HOT ROOM (CALDARIUM) WAS HEATED BY A FURNACE BUILT IN AN ADJACENT ROOM. THE FLOOR OF THE CALDARIUM RESTED ON PILLARS, AROUND WHICH HOT AIR FLOWED THAT ROSE THROUGH CLAY PIPES IN THE WALLS. THUS THE WALLS AND FLOOR OF THE HOT ROOM WERE HEATED.

Across from you stretch the foothills of the Mountains of Samaria, a ridge that rises moderately to the heights of Samaria. The ridge consists of limestone suitable for quarrying and lime production. In the valley below you can walk the Stone Way, which tells the special story of the local stone industry.

Roman Bathhouse
These are the remains of a public bathhouse that stood close to the harbor pier. It was a service provided for seafarers, along with port facilities like trading posts, repairs, storage and maintenance.
Water was piped into the hot and cold rooms, the showers and the latrines.
As usual in large Roman cities, the bathhouse served a social function, and an expression of the upmarket sophistication and refinement of the city's dominant culture.
Excavations in Caesarea over the years uncovered six such bathhouses.
حمّام روماني
بيت للاستحمام كان قائما بجوار رصيف الميناء. كان يقدم خدمات للبحارة، إلى جانب تلبية الحاجات الأساسية مثل التجارة والصيانة والتخزين.
وصلت المياه إلى الحمام عن طريق نظام الأنابيب الذي يوصلها إلى غرف الاستحمام الساخنة والباردة، إلى جانب غرف الدش والمراحيض.
كما هو الحال في المدن الرومانية الكبيرة، كان الحمام يؤدي وظيفة اجتماعية، وكان تعبيرا عن الثقافة الراقية والتطور الذي ميز الثقافة السائدة في المدينة.
خلال أعمال التنقيب في قيسارية التي جرت على مر السنين، تم العثور على ستة حمامات من هذا النوع.
בית מרחץ רומי
השרידים שלפניכם הם שרידיו של בית מרחץ ציבורי שעמד סמוך לרציף הנמל. בית המרחץ שימש את הימאים, בצד מרכזי מסחר, תיקונים, אחסון ותחזוקה.
המים הוזנו לבתי המרחץ באמצעות מערכת מתוחכמת של צינורות אל חדרי החמים והפושר, חדרי המקלחות והבלאי. המים הוזנו לבתי המרחץ באמצעות מערכת מתוחכמת של צינורות אל חדרי החמים והפושר, חדרי המקלחות והבלאי.
כמקובל בערי בתים ברומי, בתי המרחץ שימשו מקום מפגש חברתי, ביטוי לרמה גבוהה של תרבות ועידון שאפיינו את התרבות השלטת בעיר.
במהלך עבודות החפירה בקיסריה התגלו לאורך השנים שישה בתי מרחץ

An Overview of the City
نظرة إلى حيّزات المدينة
מבט אל מרחבי העיר

"And he came with all his army to Caesarea"
The French king, Louis IX, came to Caesarea in 1251 and refortified the town. The city crusader walls were reinforced: some towers were added, and a wide moat was dug, with hidden postern passages that gave secret access and exit to and from the city. Four military orders were assigned to defend the city.
"ויבוא עם כל צבאו לקיסריה"
"ويأتي مع كل جيشه إلى قيساريا"

Caesarea's Harbor – Gateway to the West
Caesarea's harbor (Sebastos) was dedicated in the spring of either 10 or 9 BCE. It was one of the most sophisticated man-made harbors of its time, and the largest and boldest in concept. Its construction merged traditional methods with innovative engineering techniques, including artificial deep-water islands as foundations of the piers and breakwaters.
The harbor could accommodate hundreds of vessels, and a diverse network of maritime trade routes connected it to Mediterranean lands. In the later Muslim and Crusader periods, Caesarea continued its Mediterranean trade relations, though reduced in scale.

מיתְרִיאוּם (מקדש האל הפרסי מיתְרָה)
MITHRAEUM (SHRINE OF THE PERSIAN GOD MITHRAS)
In the early 2nd c. A.D., one vault was converted into a "Mithraeum". The contrast between the dark vault and the shaft of sunlight reaching d' ectly the altar from the opening made in the ceiling, layed a role in the cult of Mithras, known as the "Un nquered Sun".

CITY PLANNING AND MUNICIPAL WATER SYSTEM
From Herod's time onward, the city was laid out according to an orthogonal planning of N-S (cardo) streets crossing E-W (decumanus) streets. The evolution of this southwest area - including the broadening of the main streets, the branching out of secondary alleys, and the connection to the municipal water supply and sewer systems - reflects the city's expansion in Roman and Byzantine times.
The High Level Aqueduct, which used gravity to bring water from the Shuni springs and other sources to Caesarea, was the main source of water. Water was distributed through underground clay or lead pipes to fountains, bathhouses, public buildings and the homes of the wealthy.

בשנת 132 לסה"נ נשפט רבי עקיבא

בבור זה.
כפי שמופיע בתלמוד:

Caesarea's Prison –
Rabbi Akiva's Jail
The underground structure you see here served as a T-shaped water cistern in the interior courtyard of the palace. After the time of Herod, the cistern was turned into a prison to the north of which a courtroom was built.
In 132 CE, Rabbi Akiva was put on trial in Caesarea and imprisoned for more than three years until he was executed. It is possible that Rabbi Akiva was imprisoned in this cistern.
سجن قيساريا - حبس الراي عكيفا
استخدم هذا المبنى الموجود تحت الأرض أساسًا كخزان للمياه على شكل الحرف T في الساحة الداخلية للقصر. بعد فترة هيرودس، تحولت الحفرة إلى سجن، وعلى شمالها بُنيت قاعة للمحكمة.
في عام 132م حوكم الراي عكيفا في قيساريا وسُجن لأكثر من ثلاث سنوات حتى أعدم. ومن المحتمل أن يكون عكيفا قد سجن في هذه الحفرة.

הבאר הרומית
בבאר נמצאו כשישים פיסות עופרת מלוחות סוף המאה ה-4 לספירה. ככל
הנראה, אלה כתבי השבעות וכישוף, שנזרקו לתוך הבאר בכוונה מאני
אמסביוס, בישוף קיסריה, ציטט מעשי כישוף שכיחים אלה, אותם כינה
"כתבי קללות וכישוף אסורים" בנאומו לרגל חנוכת הקבר הקדוש בשנת 335 לספירה.
THE ROMAN WELL
Some sixty lead scroll fragments dating to the 4th. c. A.D., probably execration tablets and binding spells, were recovered from this well, where they had been intentionally thrown as a magical practice. In his address on the dedication of the Holy Sepulchre in 335 A.D., Eusebius, Bishop of Caesarea, firmly condemned these widespread practices and what he called "curse tablets of forbidden sorcery".

המסגד הלבן
המסגד הלבן ברמלה נבנה לראשונה במאה ה-8, בתקופה המוסלמית הקדומה (שלטון בית אמיה, 661-750).
המסגד היגו מבנה מלבני, ואת מרבית השטח תופסת חצר פתוחה. בצידה הדרומי של החצר שכן אולם מקורה, ובו קיר הקיבלה הפונה לכיוון מכה, ובמרכזו המיחראב.
שמו של המסגד הלבן ניתן לו ככל הנראה מפני שהיה מחופה בשיש לבן. המסגד חרב מספר פעמים ברעידות אדמה שפקדו את הארץ.
المسجد الأبيض
إن المسجد الأبيض في الرملة بناية قديمة تعود إلى القرن الثامن حيث شيد لأول مرة في أوائل العصر الإسلامي الذي أمية (661-750 م)
من المحتمل أن يكون اسم المسجد الأبيض قد أطلق عليه لأنه كان مغطى ببلاط من الرخام الأبيض. دمر المسجد عدة مرات بفعل الزلازل التي ضربت البلاد.
The White Mosque
The White Mosque of Ramle was built in the 8th century, during the Early Muslim period (Umayyad dynasty, 661-750). Its name is due to the white marble that covered its exterior.
The mosque was destroyed several times by earthquakes.

The Roof and the Truss
The Michael's Tower roof is onion-shaped and roughly 23 metres tall.
Based on the dendrochronological research conducted by Tomáš Kynos (2018) and Mayrer Chlumr (2021), the truss features two significant development stages. The lower part of the roof up to the upper part of the lantern were built in 1758. This date was confirmed by archival research as the date of finishing the Baroque truss. The second research focusing on the levels above the lantern confirmed the hypothesis that the material there dates back to the end of the first half of the 19th century. At that time, the helmet underwent a significant reconstruction. According to the architectural and historical research of the truss construction lead by researchers Karol Daňan and Lenka Suchý (2018), it's possible to assume the timber used in the lower part of the helmet had been rafted to Bratislava on the Danube.
Before the 2021–2022 restoration, all of the roof was covered in copper plates connected with tongues and grooves. They were attached to the wooden shuttering via forged nails. The wooden pillars forming the lantern were covered in metal plates too. In some places, the plates are decorated with floral and caparison patterns typical for late Baroque and early Rococo. The decorations were partially gilded.

Otto Weidt (1883-1947)

Otto Weidt wächst in ärmlichen Verhältnissen als Sohn eines Tapezierers in Rostock auf und erlernt das Handwerk seines Vaters. Die Familie zieht nach Berlin. Otto Weidt heiratet 1913 die gebürtige Berlinerin Manta Kowarzy, mit der er zwei Söhne hat. Im Ersten Weltkrieg gelingt es dem überzeugten Pazifisten, sich aufgrund eines Ohrenleidens dem Dienst an der Waffe zu entziehen. Otto Weidt wird als Sanitäter eingesetzt.

Seine Bemühungen, sich als Dekorateur in Berlin zu etablieren, scheitern. Nach seiner fast vollständigen Erblindung wird er Bürstenmacher und eröffnet 1936 eine Werkstatt. Im selben Jahr heiratet er die 1902 geborene Else Nast, die ihn auch später bei seinen Hilfsaktionen unterstützt.

Otto Weidt ist entschiedener Gegner des Nationalsozialismus. Als 1939 beschäftigt er hauptsächlich Jüdinnen und Juden. Er tut alles, um ihnen das Leben unter dem nationalsozialistischen Regime zu erleichtern, bezahlt sie und versorgt sie mit Nahrungsmitteln. Otto Weidt organisiert Verstecke für verfolgte Juden und versucht, sie mit List und Bestechungen vor der Deportation zu bewahren. So rettet er vielen Menschen das Leben; ihre genaue Zahl ist unbekannt.

Nach dem Krieg unterstützt Otto Weidt den Aufbau eines jüdischen Kinder- und Altenheimes in Berlin-Niederschönhausen, bis er im Dezember 1947 im Alter von 64 Jahren stirbt.

Otto Weidt (1883-1947)

Otto Weidt grows up in impoverished circumstances as the son of an upholsterer in Rostock and learns his father's trade. The family moves to Berlin. In 1913 Otto Weidt marries Berlin-born Manta Kowarzy, with whom he has two sons. A convinced pacifist, Otto Weidt succeeds in avoiding military service in the First World War because of an ear complaint. He serves as a medical orderly.

He fails to establish himself as a decorator in Berlin. After becoming almost completely blind he turns to brushmaking and opens a workshop in 1936. In the same year he marries Else Nast, who helps him later in giving aid to persecuted people.

Otto Weidt is a resolute opponent of National Socialism. From 1939 on most of his employees are Jews. He does all he can to make life easier for them under the Nazi regime by giving them useful advice and providing food for them. Otto Weidt starts organising hiding places for persecuted Jews and tries to protect them from deportation, using bribery and deception. He succeeds in saving the lives of many people, the exact number is not known.

After the war Otto Weidt supports the establishment of a Jewish home for children and old people in the Berlin district of Niederschönhausen until his death in December 1947 at the age of 64.

Johnston globe
This globe shows the physical and political geography of the Earth, from countries and place names to geological structures, ocean currents, trade routes, and more. It was made for display at the Great Exhibition in 1851 and subsequently donated to the Society. Its decorated wooden stand with inbuilt compass makes clear that this is an artwork as well as a source of cartographic information. The globe also helps to demonstrate the close relationship between geographical knowledge and imperial power in the 19th century, particularly in how it depicts the continents of Africa, America, Asia and Europe as idealised women.

Russell Square station history
Find out more at ltmuseum.co.uk
The Grade II-listed Russell Square station opened on 15 December 1906. It was part of the route on the Great Northern, Piccadilly and Brompton Railway – the forerunner of the Piccadilly line.
The station's architect was Leslie Green, who was responsible for the design of more than 40 stations on what are now the Northern, Piccadilly and Bakerloo lines. The exterior of the station features his trademark oxblood terracotta faience tiling and half-moon windows.
The interior retains its original black, cream and turquoise tiling on the spiral staircase down to the platform. At platform level, look for the 'Lifts & Stairs' signage which contains an unusual ampersand.
The ticket hall was extensively renovated in the 1980s. It contains a plaque commemorating the 26 individuals who were killed on a train to the station during a terrorist attack on 7 July 2005.
In a typical year, more than 12 million journeys start or end at this station.

THAMES TUNNEL
The Thames Tunnel
You are standing above the first tunnel built under a river anywhere in the world. Opened in 1843, it was designed by Sir Marc Brunel. His son, Isambard Kingdom Brunel, played a key role in its construction. The tunnel is a brick box enclosing two interconnected archways, stretching all the way to Wapping. The box is 396 metres long, nearly 7 metres wide and 11 metres high, made of more than 7,000,000 bricks. Originally a foot tunnel, it has been a railway tunnel since 1869.
